DISTRICT OF NEVADA

JONATHAN REDFERN, and MARGARET REDFERN, individually and as husband and wife, and as next friend of their minor children,

Plaintiffs,

v.

TRANSAMERICA MOVING, Inc., a
California Corporation, et al.,

Defendants.

3:09-CV-00317-LRH-RAM

ORDER

Before the court is Plaintiffs Jonathan Redfern and Margaret Redfern's "Ex Parte Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary and Permanent Injunction and Prejudgment Writ of Attachment Without Notice" (#2<sup>1</sup>).

In the complaint, Plaintiffs allege Defendant Transamerica Moving, Inc. ("Transamerica"), a company they hired to move their personal belongings, never delivered their property and has since improperly withheld their property, demanding increasing amounts of money for the property's return. In the motion now before the court, Plaintiffs seek a temporary restraining order to prevent Transamerica from selling their property at an auction on July 10, 2009, in Reno,

1 Nevada. They bring the motion ex parte because they “believe that if given notice, Defendants will 2 either sell or abscond with whatever remains of [Plaintiffs’] personal property.” (Pl.’s Mot. (#2) at 3 3.)

4 Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65(b)(1), the court may issue a temporary 5 restraining order without notice to the adverse party only if:

- 6 (A) specific facts in an affidavit or a verified complaint clearly show that immediate and 7 irreparable injury, loss, or damage will result to the movant before the adverse party can be 8 heard in opposition; and 9 (B) the movant's attorney certifies in writing any efforts made to give notice and the reasons 10 why it should not be required.

11 Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(b)(1).

12 Plaintiffs have failed to satisfy either of these requirements. Plaintiffs’ belief, unsupported 13 by any facts, that Transamerica might sell their property should it receive notice is insufficient 14 under Rule 65(b)(1) to warrant the issuance of a temporary restraining order without notice to the 15 adverse party. The Ninth Circuit has held that to justify an ex parte temporary restraining order on 16 the grounds that the adverse party is likely to dispose of the property at issue before the hearing, 17 “the applicant must do more than assert that the adverse party would dispose of evidence if given 18 notice.” Reno Air Racing Ass’n, Inc. v. McCord, 452 F.3d 1126, 1131 (9th Cir. 2006) (citation 19 omitted). Instead, “Plaintiffs must show that defendants would have disregarded a direct order and 20 disposed of the goods within the time it would take for a hearing . . . [and] must support such 21 assertions by showing that the adverse party has a history of disposing of evidence or violating 22 court orders or that persons similar to the adverse party have such a history.” Id. (citations 23 omitted).

24 Here, Plaintiffs have failed to present specific facts supporting their belief that, with notice, 25 Transamerica will “sell or abscond with” their property. In her affidavit, Plaintiff Margaret Redfern 26 fails to supply any facts indicating Transamerica is likely to sell their property before the auction scheduled for July 10, 2009. In addition, as required by Rule 65(b)(1)(B), Plaintiffs’ attorney has

1 not certified in writing the reasons why notice should not be required. Before the auction date, 2 Plaintiffs will have adequate time to provide Transamerica with notice of its request for a temporary 3 restraining order and can request an expedited hearing if necessary. Accordingly, the court will 4 deny the ex parte motion.

5 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Plaintiffs' "Ex Parte Motion for Temporary 6 Restraining Order and Preliminary and Permanent Injunction and Prejudgment Writ of Attachment 7 Without Notice" (#2) is hereby DENIED.

8 IT IS SO ORDERED.

9 DATED this 22nd day of June, 2009.
